Westhawe. 1594.

A Prognostication,

seruing for the yeere of our Lorde God.
M.D.XCIIII.
And the yeere of the world.5556.

Gathered accordyng to Arte, to the vse of all men, and commodious for Marchantes and trauellers beyonde the Seas,

by Robert VVesthawe
Gentleman, student in Astrologie.

Imprinted at London, by Richarde Watkins and Iames Robertes.

Cum priuilegio Regiæ Maiestatis.

To the curtuous

Reader, health.

IF ſundry Authors of good accompt had not ſet downe at large the prayſe of Aſtronomie and Aſtologie, I had thought to haue inſerted ſomewhat here, in the defence of that ſtudy. And ſo much the rather, becauſe ſome haue vrged agayn ſt me (as they called it) the fruiteleſſe vanitie thereof: and others haue gone farther, vtterly (as farre as in them laye) ſeeking to ouerthrow that diuine knowledge, and to banny ſh it out of a chriſtian common wealth, as a thyng not onely not neceſſary, but cleane repugnant to all Religion. But thoſe Diuines hath diuine Plato confounded, ſaying: Solum Aſtrologiæ cauſa oculos nobis datos eſſe, We haue our eyes for Aſtrologies ſake. Which the Poet alſo pretely and pithely doth ſet downe. Engliſhed by M. Goldyng.

Pronaq; cum ſpectent animalia cætera terram,
Os homini ſublime dedit cælumq; tueri,
Iuſſit et erectos ad ſydera tollere vultus.

And where all other beaſtes beholde the ground with groueling eye,
He gaue to man a ſtately looke, repleate with maieſtie:
And wilde him to beholde the heauens with countenance caſt on hie,
To marke and vnderſtande what thinges are in the ſtarrie ſkie.

For Celi enarrant gloriam dei. &c. The Heauens declare the glory of God, and the Firmament theweth the worke of his handes. And God him ſelfe reaſonyng with Iob, ſayth: Whereupon are the foundations of the earth ſet? or who layde the corner ſtone thereof, when the Starres of the morning prayſed me togeather, and all the chyldren of God reioyced. Cap. 38. ver. 6. And agayne, declaring the influence that the celeſtiall orbes haue in the terreſtriall creatures, he ſayth: Canſt thou reſtraine the ſweete influences of the Pleiades, or looſe the bandes of Orion? Canſt thou bring forth Mazzaroth in their tyme? Canſt thou guyde Arcturus with his ſonnes? verſe. 31. and. 32. Surely well ſayd Ouid

Felices animę quibus hęc cognoscere primum,
Inque domos superas scandere cura fuit.
Credibile est illos pariter vitiisq; iocisq;
Alcius humanis exeruisse caput.
Non venus et vinum sublimia pectora fregit
Officiumq; fori, militiæq; labor.
Nec leuis ambitio perfusaq; gloria fuco.
Magnarumq; fames solititauit opum.

Which may be thus englished.

Thrise happy soules that fyrst the secret sought,
To scale the pallace of the heauenly powers,
Belike they reard their high aspiring thought,
Aboue both faultes and sweetes of earthly bowers:
Whose mightie myndes, nor wine, nor women brought,
Nor Court nor Campe to their declining houres,
Nor fonde ambition, nor false honnors loue,
Nor hunger after heapes of golde did moue.

The office of the mynde is, Reminisci pręterrita, cernere pręsentia, pręuidere futura. To remember thynges past, to see and iudge of thynges present, and to foresee thynges to come. The first two of these poyntes are common both to men and beastes, yea and often tymes beastes do exceede men in them: as none may compare with the Elephant for memorie, with the Eagle for quicknes of sight, with the Hounde for his tender noose, or the Spider for his speedy feelyng: But when we come to Scire hoc est, res per causas cognoscere, there they leaue vs. Now where is there any foreknowledge of thynges at all to be had, touching this lyfe, or at least so great and commodious, as out of Astrologie?

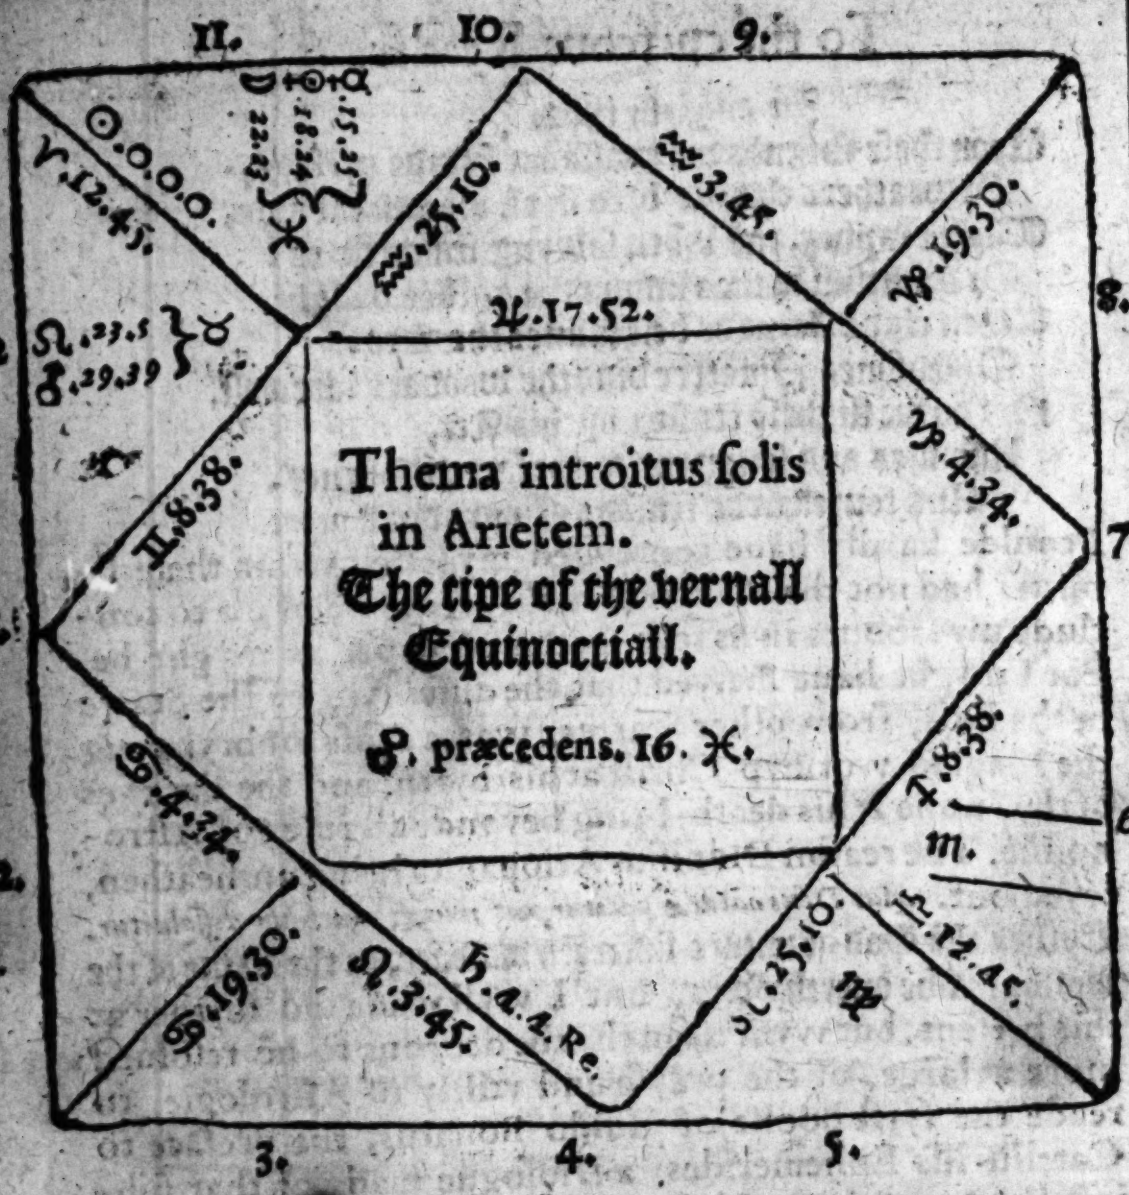
Hinc tempestates dubio prędicere cælo,
Possumus, hinc messisq; diem tempusq; serendi,
Et quando infidum remis impellere marmor
Conueniat, quando armatas deducere classes.
Aut tempestiuam siluis euertere pinum,
Nec frustra signorum obitus speculamur et ortus.
Temporibusq; parem diuisis quatuor annum,

To the curteous Reader.

In englyth thus.

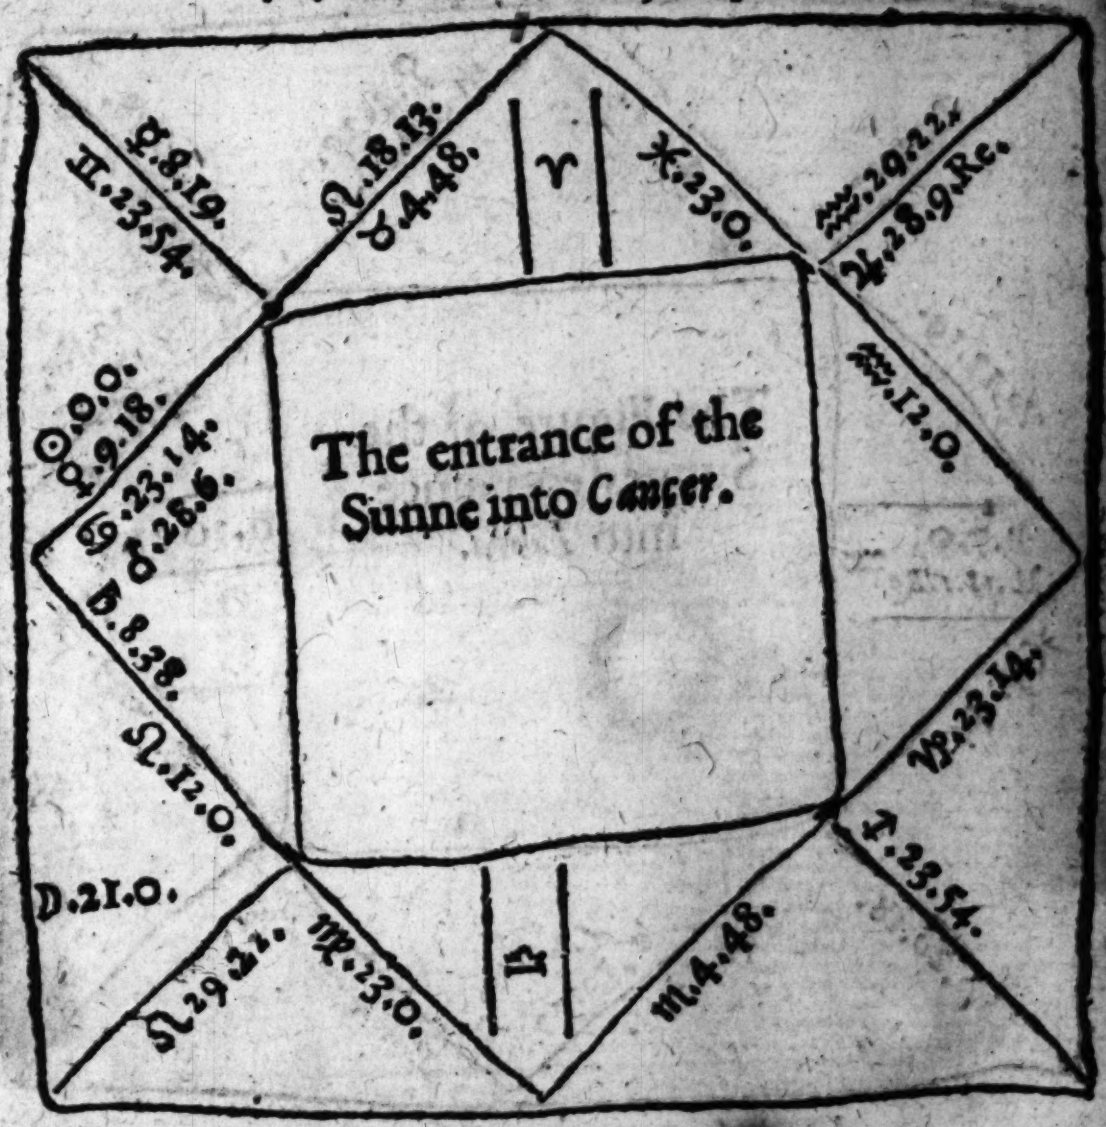
Apon theſe Signes we graſſe our ſounde preſage,
Of weathers change bred in th'vnconſtant ayre,
When reaping, and when ſowyng ſeaſon fittes:
Or doubtfull waues indure the gallies waight.
When rigde Armado beſt ſalutes the Seas.
Or ſeaſoned Pinetree bids the woodnes farewell.
Nor do we lightly cenſure by this Art,
Riſynges and ſettynges of the ſacred Signes,
And foureſharde ſeaſons of our equall yeere.

I coulde hardly haue conteyned my ſelfe within theſe limittes, had not the Printer earneſtly required of me to conclude my labours in as few ſheetes of paper as myght be. For I myght haue ſhewed that the diſſernyng of the Starre in the Eaſt, from other Starres, was a cauſe of bryngyng the Magi to worſhyp Chriſt at his byrth, and the darknes of the Sunne at his death, being beyonde all rules of Aſtronomie. The reaſon Dioniſius Ariopagita being an heathen, cryed out. Aut Deus naturæ patitur, aut mundi machina diſſoluetur. Eyther the God of nature ſuffereth violence, or the frame of the worlde ſhalbe ouerthrowne. But I wyll wade no further at this preſent, but wyſh them that be deſirous to be reſolued more at large, of the prayſe and vtility of Aſtrologie, to reade the fyrſt booke of Guido Bonatus, the preface to Catellus his Ephemerides, a Diologue made of that ſubiecte by Leouitius, with ſundry others. And for Diuines, I turne them to Garceus his Epilogue to his booke de genituris, a great and learned Deuine (accordyng to my opinion) and iudgement of many, both learned and godly.



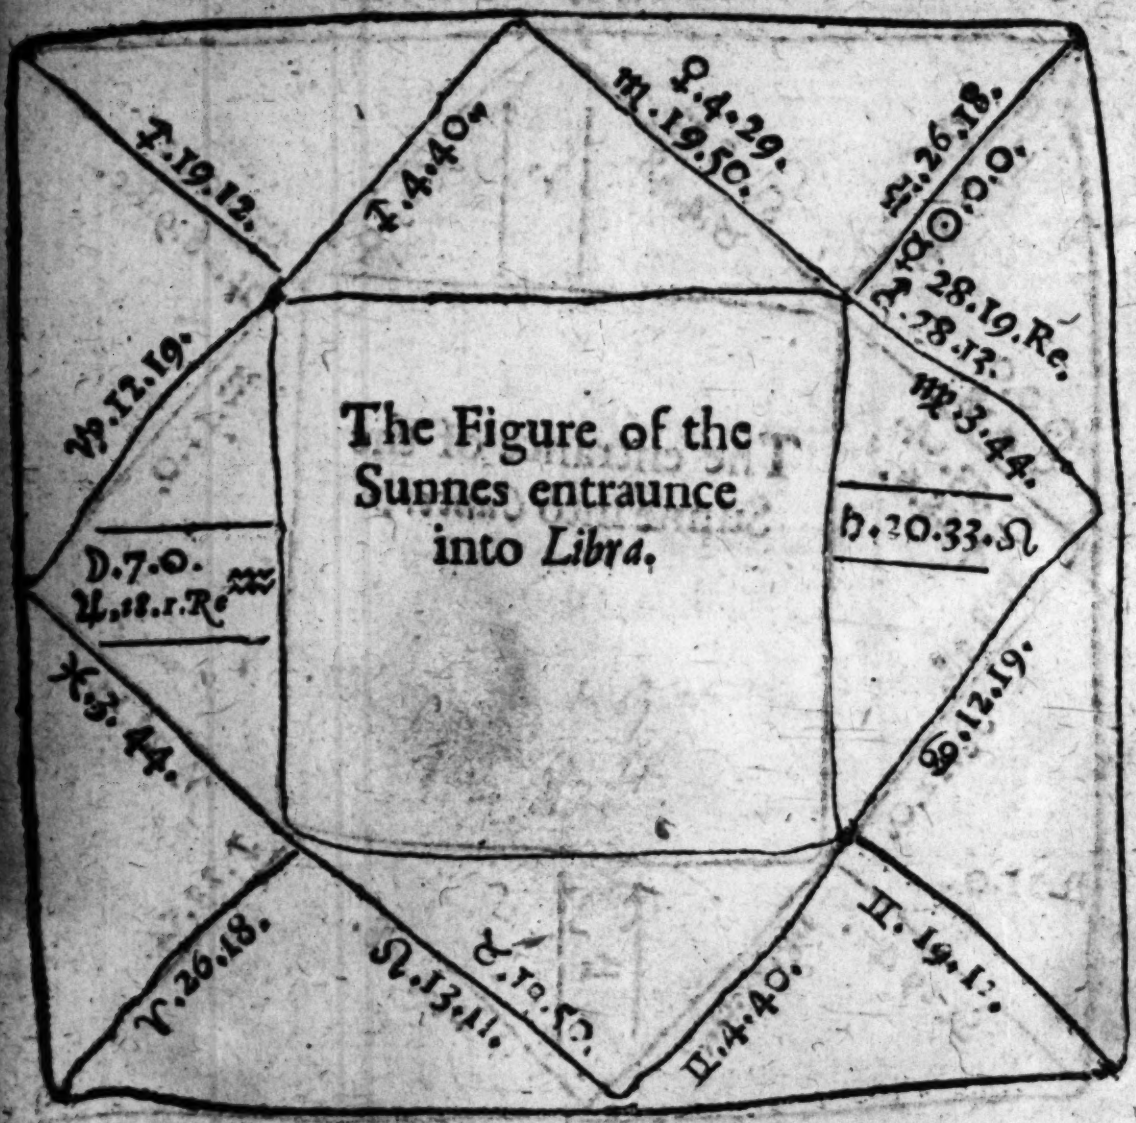
Of the Spring.

The Spring is by nature hot and moyst, sanguine, resembling the element ayre. It taketh the beginnyng the .xi. of March, betwixt .viii. and .ix. a clocke in the forenoone, at which time the Sunne entryng the first minute of Aries, maketh the dayes and nyghtes of equall length. This Quarter is lyke to proone moyst and wyndy, yet not very colde, but reasonably temperate, to the reuiuyng of such as haue been nypped with the extremity of the Winter gayng afore. Diseases most lykely to molest, mens bodyes this Quarter, are paynes in the sydes, and body, ache in the ioyntes, especially in the knees and feete, catarres, dropsies, scabbes, measelles, small pockes, and such lyke.



Of the Sommer.

SOmmer, by naturall inclination is hot and dry, cholericke, lyke to the element fyre. This quarter beginneth the. xii. day of June, about halfe an houre after. v. a clocke in the mourning. The disposition of this Quarter wylbe indifferent, yet wyll there be many vnkinde stormes, with sodayne lyghtnynges, and terrible thunder clappes. Sicknesses this Quarter wyll not be many, but passyng dangerous, hot, and feruent Agues, great distemperature of mens braynes, with immoderate heate, whereby many wylbe come franticke.



Of Autumne, or Haruest.

AVtumne is by nature colde and dry, melancholike, resemblyng the earth. It taketh begiunyng the.xiii. of September, a lytle after. iii. a clocke in the after noone, the Sunne then entryng the fyrst mansion of Libra. Myghty stormes are lyke to be this Quarter, to the great hinderance of them that be late in Haruest, especially them in the North, who shalbe in the myd Haruest. This quarter sayth Galen, is the breeder of sickneſſe, neither wyl it much differ from his naturall inclination, for many sicknesſes shal reigne this quarter, especially a great Pestilence is lykely to reigne amongst vs. Which God of his goodnes preuent.

Of

The entraunce of the Sunne into Capricorne.

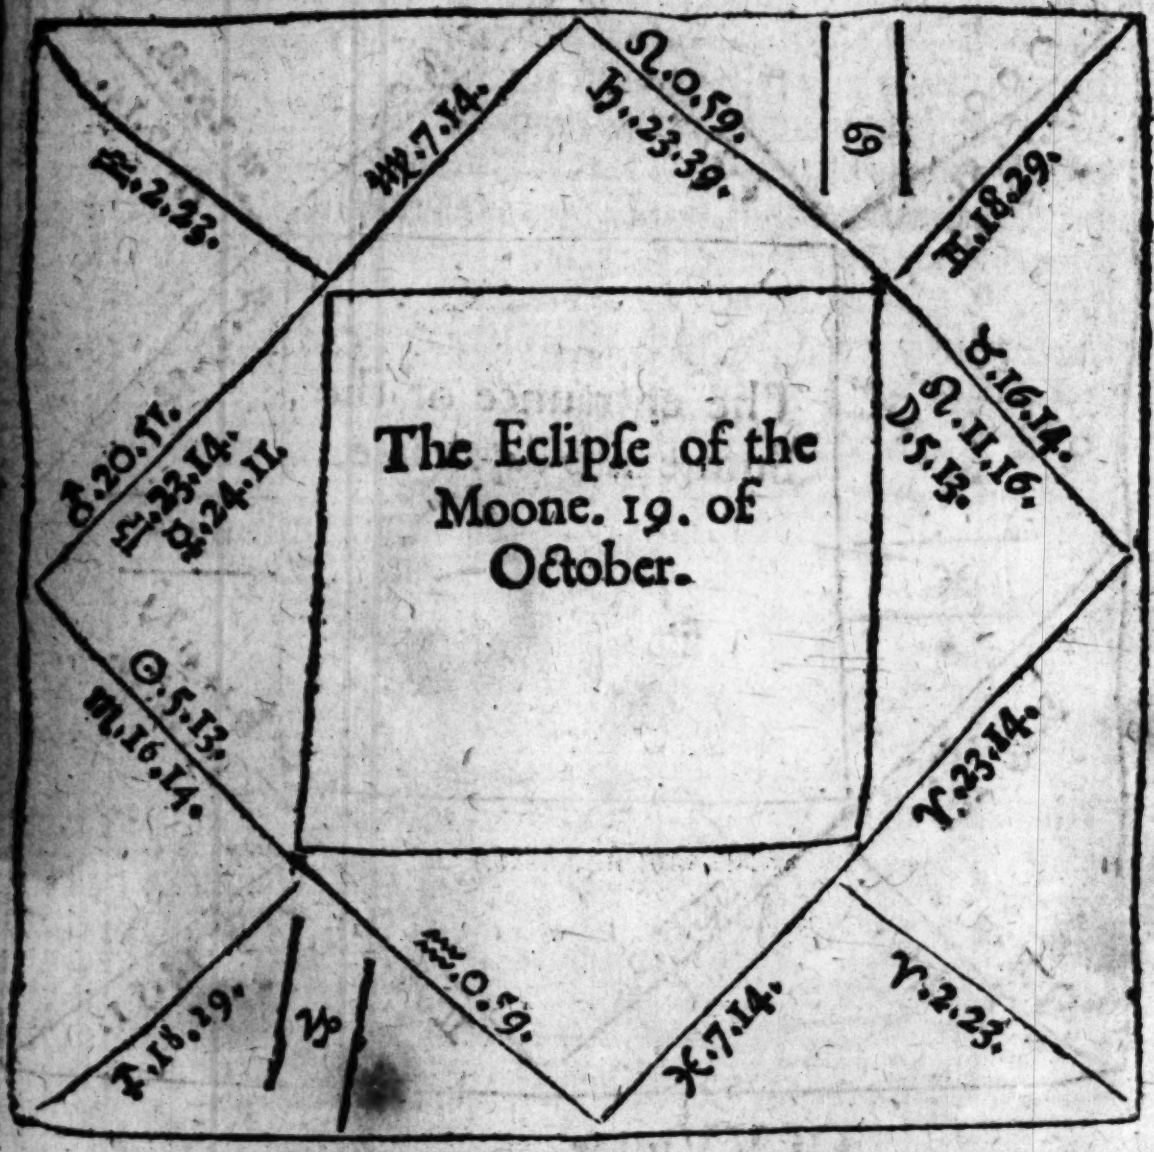
Of VVinter.

WInter is colde and moyst, flegmaticke, of the nature of the water. It beginneth the.xii. day of December, betwixt.x.and.xi. a clocke before noone: and endeth the.x. of March.1595. This Quarter wylbe very colde, with much snow, and continuing great frostes. Sicknesses lyke to reigne this Quarter, wylbe rumes, and rotten coughes, flures of the belly, long feuers, proceeding of vndigested crudities, and grosse and corrupt blood, with such lyke. God turne them to our amendement, that thereby his name may be glorified.



Of the Eclipse of the Moone.

The.xix.day, and after the accompt of the reformed Kalender, the. xxix. day of the moneth of October this present yeere 1594. about. vi. of the clocke in the mornyng, shall appeare a fearefull and terrible Eclipse of the Moone, sojournyng in the fearenth house, neare the head of the Dragon, she being then obscured stured tyme poyntes and. xxxiii. minutes. She shall begynne to loose her lyght aboue. v. of the clocke in the morning, and shall increase in darknes tyll. vi. at which tyme she shall begin to recouer her lyght, but shall not be cleane delyuered of her trouble, tyll the Sunne appearyng in our Horizon, shall driue her to wash her head in the waues of the Ocean: so that she shall depart our Hemispheare some poyntes darkened. What the effectes thereof wylbe I leaue to speake, because it shalbe of no force, tyll the seauenth of October. 1595. at which tyme it shall begin to shewe her power.
